Artist: AJR Song: Don't throw away my Legos genre: Pop Album: Neotheater Year: 2019 Other Spanish translations. Spanish translation: My new address is hard to remember, so I wrote it in the palm of my hand because I'm leaving the nest next December to do it as an adult, I'm going to lose my only defenders I'm packing all I can I've been waiting for today, but all I can say is... Oh no, don't throw away my Legos, what if I can't let them go? What if I go home, I'll come home? Oh no, don't throw away my Legos, what if I can't let them go? What if I go home, I'll come home? Can you leave my lego at home? Because I want to leave, I don't want to go ahead People want T-shirts with the name of the group And all of a sudden, we're not that bad I've saved up to rent an apartment from Mom and Dad My Christmas card looks like a mugshot because all of a sudden I get sad I'm waiting today, but all I can say is... Oh no, don't throw away my Legos, what if I can't let them go? What if I go home, I'll come home? Oh no, don't throw away my Legos, what if I can't let them go? What if I go home, I'll come home? Can you leave my lego at home? Because I want to leave, I don't want to move on. Because I want to leave, I don't want to go ahead It's cold outside, you're standing there you're trying to face your biggest fear you're shaking, you're shaking here hot, so come back Oh no, don't throw away my Lego what if I can't let them go? What if I go home, I'll come home? Oh no, don't throw away my Legos, what if I can't let them go? What if I go home, I'll come home? Oh no, don't throw away my Legos, what if I can't let them go? What if I go home, I'll come home? Oh no, don't throw away my Legos, what if I can't let them go? What if I go home, I'll come home? Can we leave my Lego at home? Because I want to move, I don't want to move on People want shirts with the name of the group on it And all of a sudden, we're not too bad enough to rent an apartment away from mom and dad My Christmas card looks like Because suddenly I feel sad waiting today, but all I can think to say, Oh no, do not throw away my Legos What if I can not let go? What if I go home, home? Oh no, don't throw away my Lego, what if I can't let go? What if I go home, home? Can we leave my Lego at home? Because I want to move out, I don't want to move on. Because I want to move, I don't want to move on There's a cold, you're standing there, you're trying to face your greatest fear. What if I go home, home? Oh no, don't throw away my Lego, what if I can't let go? What if I go home, home? Oh no, don't throw away my Lego, what if I can't let go? What if I go home, home? Oh no, don't throw away my Lego, what if I can't let go? What if I go home, home? Oh no, I'll leave when I'm gone, it won't be the same, even though I can't even go home, go home, can we leave my Lego at home? Oh, no, Ire cuando me vaya Aunque no se sentire lo mismo Ni siquiera puedo ir a casa, ir a casa Podemos mantener mis Legos en casa? Porque quiero mudarme, no quiero seguir adelante It was like one of the first songs we wrote for the album. We had just moved out of our parents' house and we realized... we have to write a song about moving. We did it about throwing away our Legos. A.J. Met's Jack Met said of the song on Instagram live. (The song is autobiographical, but written from the perspective of one person, despite the lyrics written by all three brothers. I want to move out, I don't want to move on This line highlights the conflict singer don't throw away my Legos faces. He is preparing to enter the adult stage of his life, but is not ready to leave his childhood when he grows. While he says he doesn't want his Legos to be thrown away, it's just a symbol of what he's really afraid of losing; the comfort of emotional support for his parents. Verse 1 My new address is hard to remember So I wrote it on the back of my hand 'Because I leave the nest coming December To make it as an adult man I'm about to lose my only defenders I'm packing all I can The address of the singer is hard to remember because it's so new that it doesn't even move until this coming December. This will be his first time living apart from his parents to do so as an adult. How it packs He can, he realizes, lose only his defenders. His parents have always been there to protect and guide him, and he comes in to know what a loss there lack of presence will be. Chorus Been is waiting today, but all I can think to say is Oh no, don't throw away my Legos Why if I can't let go? What if I go home, home? Oh no, don't throw away my Lego, what if I can't let go? What if I go home, home? Can we keep my Legos at home? Because I want to move, I don't want to move on, the singer was waiting for the day when he would be old enough to start his adult life and move away from home. Now that day is here, all he can think to say is/ Oh no, don't throw away my Legos. Legos are a symbol of the last breath of childhood that remains in his home. In fact, he didn't panic because he won't have Legos when he gets home. he fears that everything he loved of his childhood will disappear after today. He is unsure whether he will be able to let go and asks his parents to keep Lego (his childhood) safe at home. He wants to move out, but he's not ready to move on. Verse 2 People want shirts with the name of the band on it suddenly, we are not so bad Saved enough to rent an apartment Far from Mom and Dad My Christmas card looks like mugshot Cause suddenly I get sad In verse 2, the reality of the distance between him and his childhood begins to sink in He spends his career in music and succeeds. Now people want shirts with the name of the group on it, and with the money he has accumulated enough to rent an apartment. The apartment, he adds, is a far cry from mom and dad, an addition to the statement that sucks all the joy out of it for him. Bridgett's cold there, you stand there you're trying to face your greatest fear You tremble, you tremble It's warm here, so go back to the Abstract Bridge, seemingly held after the singer moved out of the house and entered his adult life. The singer (being the person who tells the story) perspective changes from the college age of a child who is afraid of losing his childhood, to the parents of that frightened young adult. Their child experienced pain after moving in and visits the house in search of solace as he tries to confront the greatest fear. They invite him to his childhood home as a guarantee that no matter how old he is, he never needs to worry about losing his support as his caring parents. Deep Meaning Don't throw away my Legos ajR The heartwarming bridge Don't throw away my Legos answering a question about the song. The question is, when I grow up, will I lose what I loved as a child? The bridge tells us no. Even if we can grow up and grow out of things like Legos, love parents, or a supportive figure don't disappear with movement. People who love us as infancy are not only proud of us when we step into adulthood, but they understand must be supported unconditionally, as when we were children. We haven't figured it out yet. They know that. So even if these Legos may have gotten thrown away a long time ago, the baby they belonged to still have the same shoulder to cry according to AJR's Don't Throw Away My Legos.
